

Abigail Cuales Lanceta

Southeast Asian Ministers of Education Organization (SEAMEO) Secretariat

Abigail Cuales Lanceta is programme officer in charge of information and implementation of various regional projects at the Southeast Asian Ministers of Education Organization (SEAMEO) Secretariat based in Bangkok, Thailand. She has been a teacher and an education programme specialist working on various educational development projects in the Philippines and Southeast Asia.

Her assignment at SEAMEO includes relations with the ministries of education of the 11 countries of Southeast Asia, particularly on issues requiring regional and national policy recommendations, and human resource development such as those that relate to the Education For All Goals, and providing access to quality education for the underserved communities in Southeast Asia.

She also served the Government of the Philippines through its Education Ministry in various capacities including curriculum, planning and development, and training and instruction. During years of extensive work on education at national and regional levels, she has worked with diverse stakeholders including governments and international organizations, thus becoming well adept with the dynamics of regional cooperation in education in Southeast Asia.

Her academic qualifications include English and Literature, Applied Linguistics and International Relations.